

Control of television stations need to be put back to the rules that allowed only one company to have control of one tv station in a community. One company controlling what gets on the air is very dangerous. Also, there should be a limit to the amount one company can own stations across the country for the same reason. Also, CBS should lose its license for the superbowl halftime show. To say that no one knew about it is to mock the intelligence of Americans. The exposé of Janet Jackson was not the improper part of the show. The transvestite dancers and the "dry Humping" and simulation of lesbian sex was totally improper for the public airwaves.
